

SHE PERFORMS

PRESS RELEASE

Exhibition Dates:
14 - 17th June 2018

Venue:
London Gallery West
Project Space
Harrow HA1 3TP

Private View:
Thu, 14th June 2018, 6-10pm

She Performs is proud to present its inaugural exhibition of 13 talented women artists, whose work explores themes of identity, gender and the body through figurative, and abstract painting, sculpture, photography, video installation and performance art.

What is her body?
Who performs the body?
How does she perform it?
Who owns her body?
Linguistically?
Physically?

Created by curator, Lynn Seraina Battaglia, and artist-curator, Holly Daizy Broughton, She Performs is an ongoing movement of exhibitions, events, publications and online spaces that connects art with current issues surrounding feminism and gender relations. It seeks to create a space – both physical and virtual – for female artists and their audiences to come together to engage with and exchange ideas.

Alongside the exhibition, the curators are running a programme of events that includes artists' talks, a performance and a panel-led round table discussion. Facilitated by the exhibition's curator of interpretation, Nicola Waterman, the round table discussion – She Speaks – will be an opportunity to discuss the exhibition's themes and the challenges (current and historical) of being a woman working in the art world and the wider creative industries.

Participating artists: Pauline Batista, Henna Bradbury, Holly Daizy Broughton, Emily Durtnall, Yvonne Feng, Madelynn Mae Green, Minjoo Kim, Jocelyn McGregor, Clare Price, Susanne Roewer, Flavia Tritto and Rosamund Yip.
